Subject: Letter of Reference regarding Independent Contractor Services provided by Mr Sid Ali BEDRANI to Wergonic AB

To Whom It May Concern,

I, the undersigned Farhad Abtahi, Chief Executive Officer and authorised signatory of Wergonic AB, confirm on the basis of Wergonic AB's records that Mr Sid Ali BEDRANI provided mobile application development services (Flutter / Dart) to Wergonic AB as an independent contractor from 1 June 2025 to 12 September 2026. The services were performed remotely from Algeria.

The engagement was governed by a written Independent Contractor Agreement concluded directly between Wergonic AB and Mr Bedrani through the Deel platform, which was used for contract administration, invoicing and payment processing. Under the Contractor Agreement, Mr Bedrani invoiced Wergonic AB monthly for his services at the agreed contractor fee of EUR 700.00 per month. By written amendment between the parties, the contractor fee was changed to EUR 500.00 per month with effect from 1 January 2026. Invoices were settled in euros through the Deel platform against the invoices submitted.

Mr Bedrani provided the services solely in the capacity of an independent contractor and not as an employee of Wergonic AB. He was not subject to fixed working hours or to direct supervision by Wergonic AB and organised his own working time and methods, subject only to the agreed requirements, deliverables and coordination reasonably necessary for the assignment. He performed the services from his own premises using his own equipment. He was not enrolled in any Wergonic AB employee benefit plan and did not receive employee benefits, paid leave or other employment entitlements from Wergonic AB.

Under the Contractor Agreement, Mr Bedrani was responsible for his own tax registrations and declarations, income taxes, social-security contributions, insurance and any other statutory or fiscal obligations applicable to him arising from the contractor fees or his independent professional activity, to the extent imposed on him by applicable law.

The scope of the Contractor Agreement was the design, development, maintenance and release of Wergonic AB's Android mobile application, implemented in Flutter and Dart. Mr Bedrani delivered the application from technical specification through to production releases published on the Google Play Store, including the user interface, application state management, local data persistence and offline support, integration with Wergonic AB's RESTful APIs and third-party SDKs, automated unit, widget and integration tests, performance optimisation, build and signing configuration, and accompanying technical documentation and release notes. Following each release, he delivered technical improvements based on crash reports, analytics and user feedback.

Where required for the assignment, Mr Bedrani communicated with Wergonic AB's customers and end users on technical matters to clarify requirements, identify technical issues and propose technical solutions. He had no authority to negotiate or conclude contracts, make commitments or otherwise bind Wergonic AB.

Wergonic AB was satisfied with the services delivered by Mr. Bedrani under the Contractor Agreement.

This letter is issued at Mr Bedrani's written request, and with his consent to the disclosure of the information above, solely as a factual reference confirming the professional services described and is based on Wergonic AB's records. It is not an employment certificate and should not be construed as confirmation that an employment relationship existed between Mr Bedrani and Wergonic AB. This letter does not amend, replace or waive any provision of the Contractor Agreement, nor does it create any new contractual commitment, guarantee or continuing obligation on the part of Wergonic AB.

Yours sincerely,

Farhad Abtahi
